

Retouching your headshot: The fine line between "too much" and "just right".

HEADSHOTS, CORPORATE

Everyone wants to look their best in their professional headshots. With the editing tools available to photographers and the general population alike, the question comes up - how much retouching should a professional headshot receive?

It is no secret that we photographers can take the average person and Photoshop them into an unrecognizable, fabricated super model. We can snip and tuck, liquify, contour, and remove or add just about anything to your image. But how much retouching is too much?

There is a fine line we walk every time we begin retouching your images. Below are two headshots that we've retouched. The before image is straight out of camera with no retouching. The after image has the Rick Siegel Photography retouching service applied.

Each of these clients were absolutely thrilled with the final image.

They both wanted to 'turn back the clock' a little bit and give them the confidence to showcase themselves in the best way possible.

Let us do the same for you!

You can trust Rick Siegel Photography to capture you in your best light and provide professional retouching that looks just right!

Contact us to invest in your professional image and book your headshot session today!

Our standard professional retouching services include:

- Stray hair/fly away removal
- Removal of blemishes
- Reduce under eye bags
- Whitening teeth
- Whitening Eyes
- Image cropping
- Exposure and color correction

What our standard retouching does not include

- Adding or removing large portions of hair
- Moire Removal (color or patterns caused by certain fabrics)
- Changing the color of hair
- Significant creases or wrinkles in clothes
- Background removal or change of background color

All of our retouching services are done at our discretion. For any additional retouching outside of our standard services, we can provide a quote upon request.

